"FLORIDA HAS A VOICE"

The thought that Florida cannot escape her responsibilities in world affairs by assuming a position of complete isolation, as expressed by President Hoover in his recent Chicago speech, served to disturb the complacency of those who up to that moment had considered the Sino-Japanese affair in the light of a remote and distant disturbance entirely beyond our sphere of influence or concern.

Our hopes for peace, emphasized by the phrase "America hates war," appear less assuring when the possibility arises that to obtain that object may mean to fight for it.

Nevertheless, the first lap of our perilsous future, course has been set. Together with the other nations whose signatures are affixed to the Nine Power Treaty, we must take our seat at the conference table to determine what, if anything, is to be done about it.

While the president in his speech has opened the way for discussion, future decisions as to our international policy and action will largely become a matter for the congress to decide.

Comforting to Floridians should be the knowledge that sitting on the Foreign Relations committee of the United States senate is our Junior Senator, Claude Pepper, a man of the people, sincere, able, courageous, firm in his convictions and proven in his judgment.

Himself a veteran, the fruits of war in all his hideous aspects, stand out clearly in the mind of this young statesman. From his heart, echoes the hate of this monstrous thing as it beats in the minds and heart of all Americans.

He can be depended upon to think clearly, reason logically, act firmly yet cautiously, to the end that the peace of the world and welfare of the nation will be advanced.

A LITTLE GIRL'S ESSAY

Husbands are the people that your mamma married, and she always wishes that she hadn't picked out the one she did, but I don't know why, because husbands all look alike to me.

My mamma says that husbands are like the things you look for on the bargain table. They buy fine and grand so that you feel like you've done it, but when you get home and find out you don't get the one you want, you get your eyes on the one you have set your eyes on, and you fight with another woman for it and then you find out you don't want it.

Husbands are very kind and polite to strange women, and they laugh themselves most to death when the pretty, slim young ladies tell jokes, but when their wives are joking, and has gotten fat, husbands are grouchy and when their wives tell a funny story, all they say is "Rue."

I guess husbands are the smartest people in the world and knows the most because they sit up all the evening and read papers, and can blame no one never waste any time talking to their wives.

I guess husbands are a kind of fish, because I heard some ladies say that Miss Susie Jones was fishing for Mr. Brown, but they didn't think she'd ever hook him.

THEM'S OUR SENTIMENTS, MR. KAY

Now I'm no diplomat and I've been kept busy enough worryin' about my own relations to give much thought to "foreign" ones, but I've had enough experience with human relations to have learned that one of the easiest ways to get mixed up in a sure enough scrap is to start buttin' into other folks affairs and go callin' people names.

Now the other day you and me and a hundred million other suits and callin' names enjoyed the whole cockeyed world heard it. If you think it was just Mr. Roosevelt and the State Department frothin' at the mouth, you're crazy. Them noble and indignant remarks were yours and mine and for right Emma's, and we the ones who will have to "eat our words" or "back 'em up" in the event somebody should decide they don't like 'em.

A few years back, if you will recall, we stuck out our National A-OK Jack like we're doing 'em now. With halo about our head we galloped off across the Atlantic to "do somethin' about a mess" and "Make the World Safe for Democracy."

I'll admit it seems like a good idea at the time, but what did it get us and how safe did we make the world? It was war, war, you will remember, to end war. Today most of our so-called Allies hate us because they owe us money. We sacrificed the lives of our youth, gathered a lovely harvest of cripples and gold star mothers, and provided, and caused, congressmen and lower orders of political prators with an opportunity to "say a few words" at the dedication of numerous war memorials erected to the sacred memory of our BOYS.

Now I'm sorry for the poor Chinamen just like I was sorry for the poor Belgians. I hate war just as much as you. I don't see where my grabbable 'gun and rushin' off' to see how many guys I can kill before I get bumped off, is gonna do either me or China a whole-bellina lot of good.

Franklin D. Roosevelt and his crowd about our goin' to war, in fact he said he hated war, but then he turns right around and starts sayin' a lot of nasty things about Japan and suggests that we call a meetin' of the Ladies Sewin' Circle, gossip some more, and then he says he's going to stick up our nose next time we meet her on the street.

Right away old Uncle Sam is a big shot and a great guy. Even the most hopeful diplomat was looking for a break like that. Now all they have to do is call gather 'round, slap old Sam on the back, tell him what a swell and noble chap he is, push a pen in his hand, say "sign here" and before most of us know what's happened, we'll be one of the gang, in too deep to back out and we'll be up to us to fight their fool war and pay for it besides.

Now if you ask me, we've got plenty of business to tend to right here in our own country and we've got to get it done. We can't keep out of trouble anyhow, all right let's stay here and PREPARE for it. It's a lot easier to put a fire out if you're at the home when it starts than it is if you happen to be over in the other side of town tryin' to tell Cousin Willie he's wrong and Effie's right—all of which is none of your business.

Instead of tryin' to build a fence around some other country, let's stay home and build a damn good one around our own, with anti-aircraft guns, an air fleet—second to none, and a navy, adequate to protect both coasts and the Panama Canal. It's been my experience that most folks hesitate a long time before they start pickin' a quarrel with a guy they KNOW they can't lick.

"Parnell" Plays At Glade Sunday and Monday

"Looking for a needle in a haystack is similar to finding perfect Irish screen types in Hollywood," Goldenrod Moore studio felt about it. After interviewing every available Irishman in the cinema city.

Castings of people like, Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Edna May Oliver, Billie Burke and Alan Marshall, who had to come under Murphy's duress, but he was responsible for getting most of the humdrum of Irishmen who work with them in "Parnell," which will be shown at the Belle Glade theatre Sunday and Monday.

"Upon receiving the script, I usually broke my list of needed screen type into two groups. Not only was I called upon to find hundreds of perfect Irish types," explained the casting official, "but they had to match many of the faces found in copies of magazines during the Parnell period of 1880."

"After getting as many Irish actors as possible by calling Central Casting and by going through our own files, we found that we were still short, especially of the types with long beards."

"We were about to put a special general call for all Irish types, but the words 'and the picture had been passed around' had the following day found two hundred Irishmen outside of the casting entrance of the studio," he continued.

"Out of this group we picked an additional 100, but still our lists were not completed. Another general call was of no avail. Many a German and Spanish character actor tried to get on our lists by offering a bribe, but it was no use. We had orders for Irishmen, and real Irishmen."

"Fifty more Irish actors were the demand of Director John M. Stahl, but we had 'milked' Hollywood dry of any more thespians from the Empire State."

Finally, we dispatched a half dozen assistant production managers and directors to four Southern California and find fifty Irishmen. Actors or no actors, bring them to the studio and we'll make them act! That was the order they left with.

"And being accustomed to foul weather, the New York, Chicago and Los Angeles public libraries all circulated more than 300,000 books a year."

Fill halves of hard-boiled eggs with a tart sauce or relish. Then outline salad, chop or fish platters with the cases. The leftover egg yolks may be used in creamed dishes.

Why You Should Plant ANCHOR BRAND SEED POTATOES

Grown in the Cumberland Mountains of Tennessee

The stock we have are grown from carefully selected certified seed.

The State of Tennessee requires three years rotation and is the only State that requires spraying, and they also have a very rigid inspection and roguing program.

All certified seed must be graded in the presence of the State Inspector who then tags and seals every bag as it comes from the scales.

Every effort has been put forth to grow and produce fine high yielding stock, free from disease. Anchor Brand will stand out against any other.

Green seed will not act as heavy a crop as mature seed. Anchor Brand Seed are harvested earlier, thereby affording a longer rest period.

Potatoes shrink up to 5% the first few days after harvest. Anchor Brand Seed are stored several weeks before being shipped, which insures full weight at the time of shipping.

Come in and let us quote you on Anchor Brand Seed Potatoes.

Dr. J. V. Knapp Defends Position Of Livestock Board In Deer Slaughter

TALLAHASSEE, Oct. 21 (FNS)—Defending the position of the State Livestock Sanitary board and the Federal government in its effort to complete tick eradication in Florida through the destruction of deer in five small areas where every other method of control has failed and where the complete state tick eradication programs must fail unless a remedy for the problem is found, Dr. J. V. Knapp stated today that most of the opposition appeared to be due to public misunderstanding and a general lack of knowledge as to just what the board is trying to do, and expressed the belief that if the public was fully informed and could be made to realize the true situation, present antagonism to the plan would be largely overcome.

"It is not the purpose of the board," Knapp said, "to destroy all deer in the state, although I find a great many people are under this impression. Our only problem lies in the removal of a limited number of deer from a few remote swamp areas."

J. C. Berry was a business visitor in Okeechobee Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Brower of Palm Beach were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Jernigan Tuesday.

Miss LaFau Lewis arrived this week to spend the winter with her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Young, at their home at Port Mayaca. Miss Lewis is a graduate of the Good Samaritan Hospital School of Nursing, Lexington, Ky., and has accepted a position as Dr. Young's office nurse.

"Zone after zone was cleared and released from quarantine until the Orange county area was reached. Here all efforts at control failed, although cattle were dipped and the work was conducted in the same manner as in other zones."

"Our trouble came from certain swamp areas. To determine just what the difficulty was, the U. S. Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine was called in to investigate. Research by these agencies revealed that the cattle fever tick found in other parts of Florida, and which had been controlled without difficulty, was a different variety and did not propagate on deer while the tropical type found from Orlando south did, making it impossible to eliminate the ticks and complete eradication work in the state until the deer in these swamp areas were removed.

"In short, the tropical fever tick found only in south Florida, propagates on deer as well as cattle, but exhaustive surveys have failed to find it on any other animal. The American tick, found in north Florida and other Southern states, does not propagate on deer and it is because of this fact that the difficulty did not arise until tick eradication work was carried into the more tropical areas of the state."

"As a state agency, concerned with the welfare of the state as a whole, the Livestock Sanitary board has no desire to undertake a program that would be detrimental to any interest and fully appreciate the importance of wild life preservation. It therefore proposes to seek a Federal appropriation of $25,000 to be used in re-stocking such areas as might be depleted of deer, so that the wild life resources of the state would in no way be affected other than to insure a healthier and stronger wild deer in these same areas than are found today, through the elimination of the fever tick which is protection alike for both cattle and deer."

All divisions of the Florida industrial commission including unemployment compensation, the safety department, and the workmen's compensation division are now coordinated at one location in a remodeled high school building in Tallahassee.
